

Dashiell Hammett Tells How

Gun Moll Spurned Chance to 'Tell All'

Red O'Leary Is Marked as New Prey

SYNOPSIS

The teller of this story is a private detective employed by a national agency that is busy trying to locate "the better" of a huge underworld mob which has recently "blacked out" two large banks, taking them by storm in broad daylight, getting away with loot running into the millions, and leaving more than two score dead and wounded after the spectacular attack. Two rooming house keepers have just been killed by the police in one, fourteen corpses of mobsters, poisoned or shot, have been found; in the other, the notorious criminals had been lined up against a wall and executed with rifles by parties unknown. He is keeping an appointment with Angel Garcia, a mob moll, and is frantic in pleading with him to tell her if Paddy the Meez was murdered by his former pal.

CHAPTER VIII

Red O'Leary's right hand rested on the table. It went up to Vance's mouth. The hand was a fist when it got there.

Bluepoint Vance was coming into the room. He came alone, nodding in acquaintance on this side and that, carrying his tall body gracefully, easily. His face was smilingly self-satisfied. He came without haste and with out delay to Red O'Leary's table. He sat down, but his eyes thickened the back of his neck. The girl smiled at him. Vance and gave him her hand. It was naturally done. She didn't know anything.

Vance turned his smile from her to the red-headed giant—a smile that was a trifle cat-to-mousey.

"How's everything, Red?" he asked.

"Everything suits me," blunty.

The orchestra had stopped play in Larry, standing by the street door, was mopping his forehead with a handkerchief. At the table to my right, a barrel-chested, brook-shoulder man in a white striped suit was breathing heavily between his gold teeth, his watery gray eyes bulging at O'Leary, Vance and Nancy. He was in no way conspicuous—there were too many others holding the same pose.

Bluepoint Vance turned his head, called to a waiter: "Bring me a chair."

The chair was brought and put at the unoccupied side of the table, facing the wall. Vance sat down, slumping back in the chair, leaning indolently toward Red. His left arm hooked over the chairback, his right hand holding a cigarette.

"Well, Red," he said when he was thus installed, "have you got any news for me?"

His voice was suave, but loud enough for those at nearby tables to hear.

"Not a word," O'Leary's voice made no pretense of friendliness, nor of caution.

"What, no spinach?" Vance's thin-tipped smile spread, and his dark eyes had a mischievous but not pleasant glitter. "Nobody gave you anything to give me?"

"No," said O'Leary emphatically.

"No goodness!" said Vance, the smile in his eyes and mouth deepening, and getting still less pleasant. "That's ingratitude! Will you help me to collect, Red?"

"No."

I was disgusted with this red-headed half-mind to let him go under when the storm broke. Why couldn't he have stilled his voice—fixed up a fancy tale that

DEATH Bares Hidden MILLION

AGED SPINSTER
FOUND LIFELESS

BODY IN DINGY
HOME, WITH
HER $1,500,000

By Universal Service

New York, Oct. 31—Her neighbors whispered Miss Louisa Herle was rich. And when the body of the 74-year-old spinster was found here on the basement floor of the dingy old brownstone house where she had lived alone for the past 16 years, it turned out they were right—she was worth $1,500,000.

But in one detail, the people who had known Miss Herle as a frugal old lady, shrewd in her business dealings, were wrong. The whippers said she had hidden currency and coin in the dusty nooks and corners of the old house.

Her attorney, Elmer J. Ashmead, revealed, however, that the Herle fortune consisted almost entirely of mortgages and real estate bought at bargain prices. He expressed belief the old lady died intestate.

A carpenter who had been hired by the reclusive to make some repairs on the house found the body. Receiving no response to his ring, he called in a neighbor and together they went into her basement rooms and found her there.

JUNKMEN CHICAGO FAIR OVER TONIGHT

By Associated Press
Chicago, Oct. 31—At the stroke of midnight tonight a half million eager, expansive junkmen will signal the end of the 1934-1935 Century of Progress exposition, a venture that paid despite the economic recession.

By that hour close to 40,000,000 men, women and children will have witnessed the $200,000,000 spectacle during its two-season run, and the junkmen were looking confidently to a closing of their books without a cent of loss.

Managers and junkmen of the project, which will be ready for the junkman after 3 A. M. Thursday morning, said the exposition was the most successful one of its kind in history. From the financial point of view, with the attendance topping all other international fairs.

First Lady's 'If' Averts Word War

Her Debate Banned

HOSTESS SAYS 'NO' TO CANDIDATE'S PLEA

By International News Service

New York, Oct. 31—There will be no debate between Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Miss Dorothy Finks, "or anyone else," at the dinner Thursday night in honor of Mrs. Caroline O'Day, Mrs. Caspar Whitney, chairman of the dinner committee, said today.

Miss Finks, candidate of the "Law Preservation Party," who is running against Mrs. O'Day for representative-at-large from New York State, had telegraphed Mrs. Roosevelt and offered to debate her "on the issues of the campaign," in which the President's wife is supporting Mrs. O'Day.

Mrs. Roosevelt telegraphed back she was making only one more speech, but she was "quite willing" that Miss Finks should speak if she obtained Mrs. Whitney's permission. Mrs. Whitney said:

"I am not going to let Miss Finks or anybody else spoil the dinner. The program has been arranged. Other speakers have even cancelled engagements to attend."

"A debate would take a lot of time and change the whole nature of the evening."

Had Planned Blast

Miss Finks declared she did not like strings and that Mrs. Roosevelt's reply to her challenge had strings to it.

She had said further that she would "certainly have plenty to say." Miss Finks, who highly disapproves of Mrs. Roosevelt's campaign in Mrs. O'Day's behalf, had added:

"I won't say now what I have to say. I'm going to save a bag of tricks for that night. If she can have a bag of tricks, so can I."

"I asked her support for the Democratic nomination this nomination won by Mrs. O'Day, but she told me at that time she would keep out of Democratic politics. And now she's supporting Mrs. O'Day. I think the First Lady's promise ought to be sacred."

She charged that Mrs. Roosevelt's change of mind was not unpremeditated—that "she had it in mind all along."

Telegen's Love Letters and Real Romance

Wedding Was Planned ACTRESS BARES NOTES SHOWING HIS DRAB EXISTENCE BEFORE DEATH

New York, Oct. 31.—In the background of Lou Telegen's life for 14 years was a woman who loved him—who asked nothing for his devotion, to whom he turned in trouble, who clung to him through his three marriages, to whom he sent letters twice a week, to whom he was always faithful "after his fashion."

She is Florence Turner, actress and radio entertainer, the divorced wife of Edmon C. Turner, a promoter and graduate of Wisconsin University. Yesterday she revealed her 14-year-old secret—for the first time stepping into Lou's limelight. Weeping, she told the story of their mystery love.

PLANNED TO WED
And the reason she told it, she explained, was that for the last few months she had been planning to go to him, to free him from the unpleasant environment he was in and to be married to him as soon as he and Eva Casanova could be divorced.

She showed the last letter he penned her—always going to the Hotel Ambassador to write and receiving her replies through his hotel messenger.
"Dear Florence: Thanks for your letter and believe me it was quite a shock to me that you don't want to see me. I'm glad to come out here... it's maddening. At least I want to see you. I could trust you, but I don't understand, dear. If you are right, it is impossible to take that risk, you are right... I'm glad for the circumstances in which I live are intolerable."
"Believe me, I am glad for the way you got a raise. I hope you will be in New York in not like that. Take care of yourself and write soon. Love, Lou."

TRIED TO BE FRANK
A prior letter, showing his depressed state of mind, read:

"Dear Florence: I just received your letter and believe me I feel like a depressed letter about myself. But as you ask me to be frank with you I tell you the truth... For 10 months I have been out here—after four long months of waiting could have made thousands of dollars, then I fell ill and was near death. I went through physical torture... I am like a prisoner, living in a prison, observing my every move, every telephone call which means to me being flat broke and having no job yet I have a hard time keeping my mental balance."

"Then the damnable part of it is that being so well known in this town I must keep up appearances. I would long ago have packed something else or played extra part, but then I'd have been done for completely. Not only would people laugh at me but I would be entirely a ridiculous failure in my profession. I must keep as well dressed as possible. I haven't many suits of clothes left, but I must keep up a front."

FAILURES
"When now and then my agent takes me to a studio, nothing matters. You see, dear, it is more or less a curse, being as well known as I am. Then my agent (Holland Dutch) doesn't help me, either, so with it all I see life go by in the most ridiculous fashion."

"I am not only I haven't a cent, but my freedom has been taken away from me. So to see me home at five or six in the afternoon and my belated life starts among people who only think of house parties and getting drunk, and making outrageous scenes."

"I see my whole career shot to hell. I don't trust any woman here and live the life of a monk as far as that is concerned. I am happy for you that you see your future so bright. I look back on my love and it is enough to drive me crazy. But having lost

WOMAN BLAMED IN FIRE THREAT

Postal inspectors today believed that a woman, possibly a discharged or disgruntled employee of the New England Hospital for Women and Children was responsible for the threat "to send the building up in smoke."

All night the post office experts worked on the note received by Miss Frances Cody, housekeeper of the hospital. Meanwhile five police cruisers and a score of detectives patrolled the grounds of the Dimock street, Roxbury, institution.

News of the threat was kept from the 200 patients at the hospital since many were in a nervous condition that might become serious if they thought their lives were endangered.

The letter itself was poorly written and badly misspelled. Although at first authorities were of the opinion that this manner of writing may have been deliberate in an attempt to disguise the writer's identity, they thought the writing was natural.

A number of persons were to be questioned today.

That applies to criminal lawyers, who will accept any kind of "dirty money" that any kind of criminal offers them and do their best to defeat the law.

Such a lawyer, after a case has been tried, should be put on trial himself, and go to the cell next to that of his client.

Mr. Harris will not be the only colored man South and North to work and vote for Democrats this year. Tens of thousands of colored men in Florida, for instance, who were glad to get work at 12 cents an hour, and were hired by the

A well-known actor, Lou Telegen, who used to play "perfect lover" parts and married four ladies, including Geraldine Farrar, lost his popularity, and has killed himself after telling his friends there is no place in Hollywood for a "has-been."

There is no place anywhere, for a has-been, but fortunately there is no need to remain a has-been forever. If you can't always be a "perfect lover" be something else, perhaps more useful. There are other, better jobs. Unhappy Lou Telegen was probably insane, since he stabbed himself to death with sinews.

This country produces fifty million dollars in gold a year and has a national debt of twenty-seven billions.

Russia produces $150,000,000 a year in gold now, three times as much as the United States, and the debt that Russia recognizes amounts to only two hundred million dollars.

Those that call Russia "bankrupt" should improve their arithmetic.

Careful tonight! Every corner will harbor a waiting ghost. Every deep shadow will conceal a shuffling goblin. Grimacing jack-o-lanterns will leer at you from windows, and witches swoon past you wherever you go.

That eerie jangle of bells at your window will be tick-tack-toe; that steady clink of doorbells will be found to have a pin in it. And your front fence will wander mysteriously under your neighbor's porch while his window shutters are making their stealthy way onto the roof of your garage.

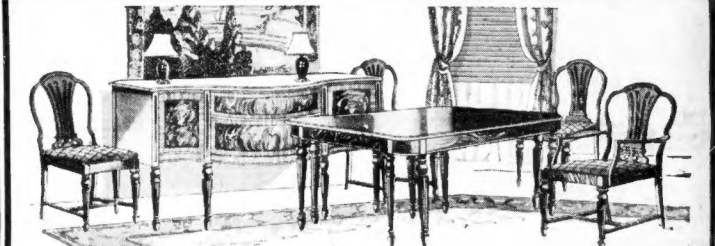

Nail down whatever you can, and batten down your hatches for a howl. The weather will be clear, but the atmosphere won't.

Marriage

By ADELE GARRISON

Mary and Noel, involved by their own actions, take matters into their own hands by a decision to elope. They almost spoil the wedding picture but for the timely intervention of Maria who, with Betty, tries to heat them to the minister.

CHAPTER 180

FATHER KATHERINE's sensitive had taken effect on Ave Arlen was doing a capital job of marriage. At an excellent Italian new I. went down at the first approach. Ave Arlen could determine the marriage of her husband. But after a long, steady stare at her, I turned to Lillian with a satisfied nod. These were common-sense, and this slender girl from that other town, Ave Arlen, was so conspicuous. I had left her and stolen away for the afternoon with Noel, when he had introduced with such dramatic effect to Maria and Noel, and such business for her husband.

I had studied an answer. "Dead in the world all right," he murmured in my ear. "I do not want to tell your father, but I will tell you."

She seemed to be in the corner of my room, which I had shaded. Noel was almost completely hidden from the bed, and I took up a magazine with a contented air.

A PEAKED TURBAN, all of feathers, is much on the scene. It cleverly stimulates a shishish roll by insensibility of feathers, while keeping its smooth flannels. Though black, it is beautifully iridescent with greens and violets predominating.

All of the cocktail hats shown were chosen because they combined intriguing style with budget ideas. They are from a Boston shop. For further details phone Annice Brink.

The Answer at B. C.

By AUSTEN LAKE

IN COLLEGE FOOTBALL, A GENERATION is a span of three years. Thus the men who were boys when Harvard last played Princeton in 1926 are now sentimental old fellows of 30, with their white hair and bald on the pate, whose memories go back through the swirling mists of time to the day when Dave

Guzzonuma and Jake Slagle kicked dirt for their alma matres. These are names of the vanished heroes of a dear, dead day, whose memory gives off the fragrance of rosemary and the mournful reek of smouldering leaves. Three generations have flown since Harvard and Princeton stuck out their pink fingers and swore to be friends no more. And now, next Saturday, they are friends all over again, and sitting down after the same to share bread in the Dillon Field

The editorial staff of the Lampton, who printed such stuff as a picture of two boys, captioned with "Come brother, let us root for Princeton." Id patriots who roared under the goal posts; the pranksters printed a bogus report of Bill Ripper's death and sold it as truthful statement under the lee of the Stadium; the old codgers at 70 sides who smothered fire and brimstone, have faded into the limbo of growing pains.

Quiet, calm and mutual forgiveness have blessed the scene, and the ivy-draped game is revived, to be carried on by lads who were only infants when the feud started.

PRINCETON HAS NOT BEEN beaten since Michigan did it in 1926, which was in the Year 1 of Fritz Riser's coaching day. And the chances are, considering the accidental flood of cheating, fence post-legged youths who have flocked to the stadium that it will not be beaten for some time to come.

Princeton is fresh from bouncing Cornell around, 40 to 0, and you may see some idea of the coalheaver strength of these

On the same day Harvard was four putting all the great Dartmouth, which lends a David and Goliath aspect to the game, with me only an outside chance that another miracle would be lived.

NATIONAL LEAGUE TEAMS around the circuit are bent on finding their leopards for 1935.

The Braves are calling for a new deck. Bill Terry says he is ready to peddle any member of the Giants except Mel Ott and Carl Hubbell. Pie Traynor will exchange his men for stinging, stamps out of the attic. Brooklyn is shopping for a new

There is an old baseball theory that the life of the best team in years, after which the flavor of a pennant hunt is in the mouths of the players.

I search, says Terry, will be for a first baseman to replace the one who is a considerable time since Terry batted for the top of his league last year.

"I'm 36 right now, and I feel very ball game."

THE MERCHANTS' COUNCIL OF LAWRENCE, an organization of shopkeepers who trade on credit, has announced its opposition to racing in its neighborhood. Haverhill is taking the

There is a Haverhill Chamber of Commerce announced that there are virtually no existing within its city, due to having the pan-municipal wickets.

More than a dozen Boston College lovers have been asked to mail or by word of tongue, how a foot after a donkey showing against Zordham, could call sharply as B. O. did against Western Maryland and Providence College.

It is that B. C. like every other average team, can be kept up by a concentration of only twice during a season. Having to do this boys for Fordham, when they spent their nervous energy in 60 minutes of pure McKenney's, paying the price of afterlife.

McKenney's problem, now, is to restore his team's nervous energy by a series of points, where, just before the Holy Ghost, he says them up all over again.

There is a human in so constituted that extra energies are poured against the need of emergencies, and which may be spent slowly or in one big emotional jag. But once tapped, his creative power is flat broke, until his physical debt is repaid and the fumes restored.

IN THE MASS OF PUBLICITY COPY that comes to this column, the most insane, futile blurb is that which hails from the American Kennel Club in New York, and which states:

The racing dog's brain is similar to the human's both in structure and function, according to Dr. W. H. Forestry Gantt of the Phillips Psychiatric Clinic.

It goes on to point out that, by long association with men, dogs have acquired human traits. Now, I am willing to concede that dogs, of the familiar pet or mascot type, with their red flannel tongues and liquid brown eyes, have qualities that transcend the human. But, while the dog is man's best friend, man is not always the dog's friend.

In breeding the weasel or racing type of dogs, with its bodkin teeth and matchlock legs, man has intentionally made of the animal a canine robot, devoid of intelligence, so that, night after night, on the sandpapered slinky hound will chase a wooden rabbit with an electric light for a tail without ever discovering the fraud

CASEY'S FORCE PASSED

The proper method of preparation for a series with the national scoring grid machine, which is an efficient, would be to do a week, and polish up every defensive weapon in your arsenal. But over at Soldiers Field, Eddie Casey, Harvard's headmaster, is pulling quite the reverse. For three days now it's drill, drill, drill, for the Crimson variety—and most of the drilling has been to sharpen the Harvard attack. Harvard draws encouragement from the fact that though Princeton has been scored upon only three times this season, once by Williams and twice by W. & L., all three touchdowns were the direct result of Casey's juggling of the Crimson's offensive material is the result of his intent to uncover a passer's

TWO SHIFTS The first bit of experimenting was Tommy Bidouze shifted to quarterback and George Ford to halfback. Now Ford and Bidouze have been joined by George Blackwood and Leo Ecker, to form an all-sophomore backfield, which Casey is seriously considering using as it stands on Saturday. This backfield would have a pair of good passers and kickers in Bidouze and Ford. Harvard's aerial attack has been more of less nil to date, with the exception of Bidouze's touchdown pass against Bates, and Casey's effective use of the above pass. Now, with a repertoire of pass plays, and a full week of drilling, Ford, Bidouze, Harry Mosier, and Jackson, may be able to detect the same flaws in the Princeton defense upon which Williams and W. & L. were able to capitalize.

LANE AT GUARD Another change is imminent in the Crimson lineup at left guard, where Bill Lane, 185-pound sophomore, has been installed for the past two days over Bob Brooks. Should Lane win the job, Coach Adam Walsh's favor over Brooks, the Harvard front will have ended. Cabell at left end, since Bob Knapp will hardly be able to start after a two-week layoff; Bill Burton, left tackle; Lane, left guard; Dan Gurnett, center; Captain Herman Gundlach, right guard; Mike Adkin, right tackle; Shaun Kelly, right end. Harvard gained a clean bill of health from Dr. Gus Thornekick with the single exception of Tom Hubbard, sub guard, who was injured in Monday's scrimmage. Even Frank Littlefield, guard replacement, will be able to play. Though Dr. Thornekick had announced earlier in the week that he would be out until the Army game.

B. U. Regulars Face Rutgers Offense

Rutgers University's variety grid squad will be sent through its toughest hours of the season today and tomorrow in order to be in peak form for the Rutgers game Saturday.

All present Coach Hanley has been forced to nurse his regulars along because of a large injured list and lack of reserve strength. This Saturday, however, he has his whole squad available and in addition he has no game scheduled a week from Saturday, so his men will have a two-week respite.

There will be scrimmages against a freshman team using the Rutgers offense today and tomorrow. The "New Brunswick" school, and the Notre Dame offense and as Hanley's regulars are not yet ready to meet the "Irish" themselves, he is forced to nurse his regulars along because of a large injured list and lack of reserve strength. This Saturday, however, he has his whole squad available and in addition he has no game scheduled a week from Saturday, so his men will have a two-week respite.

The board ruled that feature matches must start promptly at 10 p. m. and continue to a finish at 11 p. m. and that no match will be permitted for any program, and no wrestler will be allowed to appear in more than one finish, box each week.

Kase Predicts Defeat for Green, Army

Harvard, Tufts, H. C., Too, Says American Ace

By Max Kase With little preliminary and too much, the professor makes known his clinical report of the operation to be performed on the various major divisions this Saturday.

The title "Professor" he is underated, is an honorary one, something akin to the colonelcy of the New York Academy of Sciences.

True, next week the professor may be a bum, but those who lack the courage to accept these and subsequent falls with a patient, silent philosophy.

For this week the professor used a supply of litmus paper, two sounding boards, one color blind test, and a large cauldron in his laboratory.

After all of his observations were completed the professor packed his trunk and left for his vacation.

NEW PRODUCT IS CREATED IN WEST

By R. C. FORBES

In the New York, 31-Out of the West has come something new, the only really new thing in its line in 50 years.

It is so good that the Metropolitan of Art in New York is to exhibit it, the highest honor that can be paid an industrial product.

It is French, and pottery covered by one of the West's oldest artists, prices. When asked of 'A. B. McLean, of the concern, just what is this unique creation?

"This pottery is made by an entirely new ceramic material, the first new material to be used by potters in the 50,000 or more years since some cave dweller first discovered that when heated, changed its com-

This ceramic material is built up in various products found in California, which is the only state in which is talc rock, the basic constituent of talcum powder.

"This pottery is as strong as granite, won't craze or leak. Although introduced only last April, it has caught on so fast that it is now already distributed in all the 48 states, our island possessions and Canada."

Another western illustration that there is eager demand for superior products is the swamping of the manufacturers of the Douglas airplane with hurry-up orders. I know one man who had to wait months for delivery of one of these mammoth, highspeed liners.

I am inclined to think that, if the California gubernatorial election result is encouraging to industry and business, we will see the inauguration of a period of impressively improving business and

In order to facilitate the computation of margins under the regulations of the Securities Exchange Act, the Boston Evening American has carried the low price since July 1, 1933, instead of the low for the year. The Securities Exchange Act provides that until July 1, 1933, the lowest price at which a security has been sold shall be the basis for computation of margins. The Act provides that the lowest price in the preceding 36 months will form the basis for margin computation.

New York, Oct. 31.—The stock market remained in a fairly firm but somewhat listless mood today. Substantial gains were secured by a number of specialties, but the general list was narrow. Oils were moderately higher. American Corporation, United Fruit and Liggett & Meyers & Co. rose around 2 points each. Noranda declined as much.

STEEL STEADY
U. S. Steel, American Telephone & Telegraph, General Motors were about even.

While wheat was a bit easier, corn improved. Cotton was barely steady. Bonds were mixed, with U. S. Government securities slightly higher. Foreign exchanges were quiet around their previous closing levels.

CUT RESTORED
Favorable news of the oil situation was attributed partly to the fact that the gasoline war is being fought and to the hoisting of prices in the foreign market. The announcement of a conference at the White House, at which the President and the Secretary of the Interior discussed the oil situation, was also a factor. The oil market did not create any particular interest. The price of oil was steady, with a slight decline in the market. The price of oil was steady, with a slight decline in the market.
